Abstract

Mack Brown served as head coach of the University of Texas Longhorns Football Team from 1998 until 2013. During his career at UT, Brown was named the 2005 NCAA Coach of the Year, the 2008 Bobby Dodd Coach of the Year, and coached the Longhorns to a 2005 national championship win. In addition to his prolific career as head coach at UT, Brown held leadership positions with the American Football Coaches Association. The Mack Brown Collection illustrates Brown’s multifaceted duties as head coach of the University of Texas football team as well as his role in the world of Texas and college football. The materials in the collection primarily consist of textual documents, including game clippings, staff meetings and memos, press materials, personal notes, personal day-planners and agendas, playbooks, and correspondence. Other materials include binders on various playbooks and staff retreat documents, video footage of games, practices, and award ceremonies, and Brown’s personal sports ephemera and book collection.

The materials range in date from the 1930s until 2014 with the bulk of the material dating from 2005-2013. The collection was donated in 2013 through an arrangement between the Stark Center and the UT Athletics Department.

Biographical Note

(William) Mack Brown was born August 27, 1951 in Cookeville, Tennessee to Melvin and Katherine Brown. He attended Putnam County High School, where he lettered in football. He attended Vanderbilt University from 1969-70, and went on to graduate from Florida State in 1974. He played running back for Florida State during the 1972-73 season where he suffered a career-ending injury. His inability to continue to play football prompted him to turn his attention to coaching.

Brown began his full-time football-coaching career in 1975 as an assistant coach at Southern Mississippi, where he also earned a master’s degree in administration. Over the next 10 years, he also served as an assistant coach at Memphis State (1978), at Iowa State (1979-1981), and at LSU (1982). In 1983, he spent one year as head football coach at Appalachian State and then accepted a job as the offensive coordinator at the University of Oklahoma. In 1985, Brown became the head coach at Tulane and then, in 1988, moved on to a head coaching position at the University of North Carolina. After a decade in North Carolina, Brown became head coach of the Longhorns football team at The University of Texas at Austin in 1998.

Mack Brown was the 28th head coach of the Texas Longhorns, coaching the team for 16 years and retiring in 2013. During his tenure, the Longhorns were often ranked in the Top 25 teams in the nation. He received numerous awards for coaching, including the 2005 Bear Bryant National Coach of the Year, the 2008 Bobby Dodd National Coach of the Year, the 2009 Big 12 Coach of the Year, and the 2013 Neyland Trophy Award. He led the Longhorns to win the 2005 Bowl Championship Series (BCS) National Championship Game, and is a member of the Longhorn Hall of Honor. Many of his players were also successful and won several college awards, including the Heisman Trophy, the Doak Walker Award, the Manning Award, the Jim Thorpe Award, and the Campbell Trophy. As of 2014, thirty-three of his former players were playing in the National Football League, including Jamaal Charles, Colt McCoy, Henry Melton, Aaron Ross, Sam Acho, and Kenny Vaccaro.

As head coach, Brown was also heavily involved in recruiting at The University of Texas. To assist with recruiting, he formed strong relationships with high school football coaches and held high school coaching clinics for many years. He placed emphasis on a high level of achievement in the classroom, and the Longhorns led the Big 12 in academic all-conference for five of his last eight seasons. He was President of the American Football Coaches Association in 2013 and served on the association’s Ethics and Public Relations Committees. Brown was also engaged in a number of community service projects, including taking part in the 2009 Coaches Tour, visiting U.S. troops overseas.

After retiring from the University of Texas in 2013, the Browns moved back to North Carolina. In 2014 Mack Brown became a college football analyst for ESPN. Mack Brown and his wife Sally have four children and four grandchildren.

Scope and Content

Mack Brown Collection: 7 Boxes, 4 Music Boxes, 6 Custom Boxes, 99 books, 388 Folders, 1930 - 2014, undated

The bulk of the collection documents Mack Brown’s head coaching career at the University of Texas at Austin. Brown’s involvement with the American Football Coaches Association is represented in the collection in addition to other records pertaining to his role as a major public representative of the UT Football Program. A significant portion of the collection is made up of documents detailing his duties as head coach. Some of the salient topics present in the files are, press relations and media coverage, individual player and team performance, administration, travel and speaking commitments, on-field leadership and improvement, and NCAA regulations. The collection also contains personal materials, including Mack Brown’s day planners and agendas, personal notes taken throughout the course of his career as the Longhorns Football head coach, and correspondence exchanged between Brown’s assistant and various colleagues and journalists. Other documents in the collection include materials about members of the football team, and are particularly focused on Brown’s last few seasons.
The collection also includes items originally kept in his office of personal interest to Brown. This portion of the collection consists of 99 books on a myriad of sports and non-sports related topics as well as various sports ephemera, including vintage Sports Illustrated issues dating back to the 1930s. Part of the collection is also comprised of a large number of binders, created and organized by Brown, which include and collate various coaching materials. Large portions of these materials document specific plays and statistical metrics used on the field. Included in the collection of binders are also schedules, daily agendas, and documents from the various coaches’ retreats Brown attended.

Collection materials are largely textual. Other formats represented are, DVDs, VHS tapes, calendars, and other visual materials. The materials in this collection date from 1930 to 2014, with the bulk of the materials documenting his time as the head coach of the Longhorns football team (1998 – 2013), and particularly focus on the 2005-2013 seasons. The majority of the records are centered geographically on Austin, Texas, specifically, the University of Texas at Austin.
